

"If you didn't have to go to work everyday and could afford to travel anywhere in the world to discover gold, ancient treasure or a lost city, where would you want to go and what would you hunt for?"

Would you like to travel to exotic and remote locations while earning a fortune and having the time of your life?

Would you like to learn all the unique, proven methods of a professional treasure hunter, prospector and explorer that are responsible for his greatest discoveries?

You can* leave the rat race behind, live a life of adventure and freedom plus earn a great living at the same time – I did and I will show you how to do it step by step!

Would you love to live the life of Dirk Pitt? Aren't you tired of watching Indiana Jones reruns, wishing that could be you in the adventure instead of Harrison Ford? Do you long to search for and find treasure, lost cities or fabulously rich gold deposits? Do you dream of finding Yamashita's Treasure in the Philippines, or The Treasure of Cocos Island near Panama? How about discovering The Lost Padre Mine in New Mexico or La Caverna del Oro in Colorado? Sounds awesome you think, but your reality is you are stuck wasting your life going to a job everyday that bores you to tears or perhaps even hate.

Welcome to the club! You aren't alone. There are thousands of frustrated adventurers in the world, dreaming of escaping the Rat Race to live their dreams of exotic locations and rich discoveries of gold and treasure.

Here's the good news:

YOU can create a lifestyle of adventure for YOURSELF, making the transition from a hobbyist or daydreamer to a professional while earning a great living at the same time. You can choose to live a life of adventure full time or for several months a year.

Now, sit back and visualize this scenario... while digging through a used bookstore in a small town, you come across an old book published in the 1880's. The book describes the pioneer history of Montana and Wyoming. It is actually a compilation of stories as told to the author by family members of original settlers.

In one of the stories, you come across the mention of an old Spanish mine discovered by a settler on his ranch in 1854. The story tells of Spanish markings carved into the rock near the mine entrance. The markings include a large cross and the word "ORO".

With the information in the story, you are able to trace a couple of likely places where this mine was probably discovered over 150 years ago. You already have written reports of ancient Spanish activity in this general area in your personal archives. Using the Internet, you search for the descendents with the family name mentioned in the story. Bingo! You have a hit in a small community in southeast Montana.

With all the corroborating photocopied information, maps, data, satellite photos, etc., you strike off in your mini-motorhome, armed with all the high-tech gear you may need to pinpoint the mine entrance. Once you arrive at your destination, you quickly locate the family in question, confirm the identity of their great-grandfather and obtain written permission to search their rather large property. They didn't even know about the discovery made by their relative.

A two-day search results in the discovery of the mine entrance filled in by loose rocks and hidden by some thick growth. Sure enough, there is the cross and word "ORO" inscribed into the rock wall at the entrance! You found it!

Would you like to live this exciting and adventurous lifestyle fulltime? Or, how would you like to be able to live like this for several months each year? Did you always believe that this is simply impossible for you to do? It's not at all...

Like you, even though I was caught in the rat race many years ago, I always dreamed of hiking through remote jungles in search of lost cities and ancient treasure. I literally spent hours everyday, visualizing myself on expeditions all over South America. I discovered a lot of very cool things in those daydreams. It was fun being a famous explorer.

Finally, I resolved to actually start living those dreams of mine in real life. Slowly, I began venturing out, close to home at first and then further and further away. I met a lot of dead ends and dry holes, but I sure had fun searching. I'll never forget the feeling of finally finding my first 1-ounce gold nugget. And I'll never forget the adrenaline rush of finding a small pouch of gold coins from the 1849 gold rush times near Downieville, California. I was hooked.

The recoveries began coming much faster and easier after I learned how to cut to the chase and not waste my time in low-potential, high-risk pursuits. I learned exactly what it takes to properly research a project and then go to the field for a fast recovery. I learned how to turn my discoveries into cash through several proven money making methods. This system of knowledge and experience is what pays the bills and gives you the freedom to live this incredible lifestyle full-time or part-time, whichever you prefer.

My name is Stan Grist and it took me decades to figure out exactly how to achieve freedom and success while living an exciting life of adventure and discovery. Bonus #1: Ancient Spanish Documents and Letters Relating to Gold Discoveries In El Dorado of Ecuador 1500-1700 -This extremely rare collection is composed of letters written between Spanish governors, Jesuit priests and political leaders within what is today the country of Ecuador. This exclusive collection researched by Stan Grist over several decades is not currently published even in Spanish and has never been translated into English before. These excerpts give valuable clues about rich areas that were mined in the fourteenth through the nineteenth centuries, especially from the area of El Dorado. The sites mentioned in these documents were never mined extensively, by modern standards, and still hold tremendous, rich alluvial gold deposits. This exclusive e-book in PDF format is 15 pages translated from rare and original Spanish documents and includes images of Jesuit maps and etchings. (Sold separately for $13.95 US in our Treasure Guide Store)

Bonus #2: The Treasure Hunter – Robin Moore and Howard Jennings. This terrific e-book is essential reading for all Explorers, Prospectors, and Treasure Hunters. It inspired me to be able to eventually make a comfortable, full-time living as an Adventurer. I believe you will find it as compelling as I did. This book, based on the true-life stories of treasure hunter Howard Jennings, was really responsible for opening up the world of exploration for me. 173 pages (sold separately for $12.95 US in our Adventure e-Book Store)

Bonus #3: A Claim in the Hills - James Wickendon. This is one of the very best books I have ever read about diamond prospecting in South America. It is a true adventure story of a young man who left civilized life in the West Indies and set out alone to prospect in the remote mountain ranges where the borders of Brazil, Venezuela and (what used to be called) British Guiana meet. Besides being a story of high adventure, it is also extremely helpful in learning the details of how to prospect for diamonds. This guy found a fortune in diamonds! 263 pages (sold separately for $12.95 US in our Adventure e-Book Store)

Bonus #4: The Chronical of Akakor - Karl Brugger. This extremely rare, non-fiction, out-of-print e-book, is about the controversial origin of mankind and mysterious subterranean tunnel systems below South America. It is a "must read" for all explorers. This story is a perfect example of how much of the unknown and mysterious is still waiting to be investigated. 94 pages (sold separately for $12.95 US in our Adventure e-Book Store)

Bonus #5 The Science of Getting Rich - Wallace D. Wattles. Timeless wisdom and a practical step-by-step prosperity program from a forgotten 1910 classic. A must read for everyone who wants abundance and prosperity in their lives. This book reflects my beliefs on what it takes to create a rich, fulfilled life of abundance, prosperity and happiness. In my personal opinion, peace of mind is about the daily path we're on, and not necessarily the final destination.

Bonus #6 Inca Gold - Jane Dolinger. Inca Gold has been a great inspiration to me in my life as an explorer. I actually read it for the first time after having moved to Ecuador. If I had read this book before I moved to Ecuador, I would have made the move much sooner! You won't believe the huge quantity of detailed information that you'll find here about how to find gold, treasure and lost cities. (sold separately for $12.95 US in our Adventure e-Book Store)

Bonus #7 The Jungle is a Woman - Jane Dolinger. The Jungle is a Woman really reminds me of my own experiences as a young gold prospector in Mato Grosso, Brazil in the late 70's and early 80's. I still remember the time I had a "first encounter" with a tribe of Cinta Larga Indians while inspecting our new, small mining camp landing strip on my very first day ever in the Amazon Jungle. See if your heart doesn't race while reading of Jane's amazing and true Amazon adventures. This book serves as your perfect guide to learn how to enter into and explore remote, unexplored territories, especially jungles throughout the world. The information in this book is just as applicable today as it was when the book was written. (sold separately for $12.95 US in our Adventure e-Book Store)

Bonus #8 Wilderness Survival - assembled by Stan Grist. In this day and age of widespread natural disasters and terrorism, you don't even need to be a Boy Scout or explorer for this information to be potentially life saving! Dozens of Hurricane Katrina victims could have survived had they been masters of the information in this Wilderness Survival manual. Unexpected survival emergencies have occurred in my life on several occasions and could occur in your life at virtually any moment. You need to be prepared! This huge, 300-page manual of 23 chapters, cover every imaginable aspect of survival in any and all environments. Dozens of detailed illustrations help to make this manual crystal clear. Learn to find safe drinking water, scavenge nutritious food, build a fire with no matches, and sleep warm and dry in any condition or environment. Learn to move undetected through hostile environments as you work your way back to a safe harbor. (sold separately for $12.95 US in our Adventure e-Book Store)

Bonus #9 Hard Rock Mining – From Prospect to Production. This excellent manual goes into great detail about all of the points of taking a mineral discovery all the way through to commercial mine production. It covers all the necessary details of compliance with U.S. mining rules and regulations.

Bonus #10: Three Questions and Answers. You can email me with three questions concerning my Creating Wealth Through Adventure System materials, which I will answer personally (valued at $300.00)

Creating Wealth Through Adventure System...

1. Lost Cities

Jesuit map with the locations of the 7 Lost Cities of El Dorado!

I consider myself to be an “explorer” in general. I am interested in everything out there. I love lost cities, gold, treasure, mysteries, gems, history, archaeology, anthropology, paleontology, etc. I love to go into unexplored areas just to see what is there. I take photos and videos, gather samples, study the geology and just try to figure out if anything important has taken place in the last few million years or so.

I am often asked, “Are there many lost cities left out there in our modern day and age of jet air travel, satellites and high technology?” My answer is always the same... “There are, literally thousands of lost cities (significantly and anciently populated sites) left to discover. These sites have lain dormant and unknown for hundreds to thousands of years.

I have discovered and visited more than two-dozen lost cities myself. If properly motivated, I could discover and visit a new lost city every month. The vast majority of these sites are completely virgin and unexcavated. Often, local Natives are aware of the sites but don't attribute any great importance to them...(to read more, please order my system)

2. Ancient Mysteries

With a bit of research, you can discover numerous ancient mysteries right in your own backyard. This is one of the best ways to break into the exploration business. You can begin with local explorations and then work your way up to more distant locations. The local media is always starving for these types of stories. They can be used as free publicity for your ventures.

When I was 16 years old, I was metal detecting in a large park near my home in the suburbs of Detroit, Michigan. The park was protected from any type of urban development and was still in a very natural state. After hours of searching one day, and after not finding a thing, I got a very loud signal a few feet away from the riverbank. As I dug down, I began finding strands of barbed wire fence. It had a unique design and appeared hand made.

To make a long story short, I returned with a hacksaw and removed a 2-foot section of the fence. I took this section to the local museum and they sent it to Michigan State University. The barbwire was found to be over a hundred years old and considered important archaeologically. I was then offered $50 for the barbwire fence section by a friend of the museum curator. In the end, we decided to make it a donation and the museum put it on display.

The museum was housed in a historic Grist Mill (no pun). As a result of my donation, I was invited to SCUBA dive in the river that ran under the building in an attempt to recover some very old grave stones that had been cast there over a hundred years earlier. This was all a pretty great adventure in ancient mystery investigation for a 16-year old. These old/ancient sites can be found anywhere in the world.

I am currently investigating an ancient network of caves and tunnels that run under South America. This is an amazing ancient mystery and I receive email weekly from people all over the world about it. Read more about it in the "Chronicle of Akakor" (one of my free bonuses to you). One of the entrances to the tunnel system is in the heart of the Seven Lost Cities of El Dorado. Watch my web site and newsletter for updates on this project. See more info below in the "Ancient Tunnels" section...(to learn more, please order my system)

4. Cryptozoology

You can make a fortune by documenting the existence of a new, undocumented animal. I've even seen several different undocumented animals myself in the jungles of Mato Grosso, Brazil. This is a much more common phenomena than you may have believed. Just check out some of the photos below for new animals that have been discovered in the last century. El Mono Grande has still not been officially documented. I have spoken with several natives in 3 different countries that have seen him!

El Mono Grande

Alluvial Gold and Precious Metals:

Alluvial gold that Stan processed in a gold room near Dawson City, Yukon

I have prospected extensively for alluvial gold all over the Americas. I have spent a large portion of this time in Ecuador and managed to discover a gigantic, commercial, alluvial gold deposit in the Amazon jungle which is currently being developed and mined by a Canadian mining company. I have also written a report Secret Gold Sites of Ecuador Revealed! about the gold regions of the entire country. You could do the same thing in any part of the world and capitalize on your discoveries in a similar way.

If alluvial gold prospecting is of great interest to you, you should really check out my Ancient Deposits, Modern Wealth e-package. I believe it is the most unique product of its type in the world. It contains every detail you will ever need to find and recover many ounces of gold every day. If you are curious or interested, please check this out:

I strongly believe that alluvial gold prospecting and mining is one of the very best ways in the world for the individual or couple to make more than $100,000 working no more than 6 months each year. I know dozens of people who do it. That said, it is not easy work and usually requires several years of faithful experience to reach that level. Believe me, it is worth every minute that it takes to reach that level though. In the end, you have the ability to be totally free, visiting your favorite gold banks whenever you need to make a withdrawal!

13. Dredging

I know about two-dozen people who dredge gold for a living. They work about three months of the year and each earn a net income in excess of $150,000 in that short period of time. They each own 1 - 3 gold claims in the Motherlode Country of California. They each dredge their claims every year and find that a whole new supply of gold has been deposited in the same cracks, crevices and bedrock potholes – every year!

Carson & Stan dredging the Abanico River in El Dorado territory, Ecuador

Most gold dredgers do not earn $150,000 per (3-month) year. This level of income is usually reserved for people with many years of experience, the best equipment, and an excellent location. However, hundreds of people earn a very comfortable income ($15,000 per each month worked) dredging gold all over the world.....(to learn more, please order my system)

15. Large Alluvial Production

One of the most exciting experiences of my life has been the extended process of discovering, testing, selling, opening a mining office, accounting & legal, exploring, drilling, and putting into production what I believe will someday become the largest alluvial gold deposit in the world. This has been more than a 20-year process altogether. It has been a huge chunk of my life.

Stan slipping through the mud at the mine site

All that said, I probably wouldn't wish this experience on my worst enemy. It has been a journey of intense excitement, frustration, depression, broken human and family relationships, deceptions, outright lies, anticipation of great riches, and a thousand other strong emotions. Was it all worth it? Kind of...

Stan cleaning out the Grizzly Box

Having lived this experience is what qualifies me to write a few words about the subject of Large Alluvial Gold Production. I do believe that I may write an in-depth book of this experience someday. You'd have to see the photos to really believe my whole story. I think it is worthy of a full-length, feature, dramatic movie.

The first mining site of Stan's discovery

Twenty years ago, I met an interesting man who eventually told me the rags to riches story of his father and family. His father had been an explorer and had discovered a river that was rich with gold. It took nearly a year to figure out and discover the river's name and location. But I finally did it. It is called the ... (to learn more, please order my system)

16. Royalty Agreements

After making my exciting alluvial gold discovery in Ecuador, it took some years for me to finally find a company with the interest and resources to develop my prospect. Eventually, I was introduced to a public company president who immediately became interested in my story. We eventually negotiated a royalty structure that was to become one of my pathways to financial freedom.

My royalty agreement was recently “bought out” by a private company that is moving in and setting up several different mining operations within the concession area. I do believe that this will eventually become the largest alluvial gold operation in the world. This rich deposit covers a massive area at the foot of the famous Llanganati Mountains.

Royalties are a great way for you to develop a passive or residual income. You can create royalty deals on mines, intellectual property products such as my CD-ROM, Lost Treasures of the World, inventions and many other types of projects. Once you lock in a long-term royalty deal and it begins to pay, you have just achieved financial freedom. This freedom allows you to pursue your passions and work on significant projects for the rest of your life.....(to learn more, please order my system)

Alluvial Diamonds and Gems:

17. Sniping and Small Production

Did you know that gem quality diamonds have been found in over 31 different states and 86 different counties in the U.S.? Did you know that major diamonds strikes have recently occurred in Canada? Chances are that diamonds have already been found somewhere near your home and more are waiting for you now.

For example, for a small fee, you can hunt for diamonds on the state-owned Crater of Diamonds State Park in Arkansas, 1 and 1/2 miles from Murfreesboro. This is where, in 1924, the famed Peiken Diamond was found. It weighed 40.23 carats then cut to an emerald shape of 12.42 carats, worth about $250,000. An average of one diamond per day is found by visitors to the mine.

Obviously, diamonds are not nearly as rare as we have been led to believe. You can still cash in for many thousands of dollars with the discovery of even one, small diamond. Larger raw diamonds are worth more than $50,000.

Did you know that raw rubies, sapphires, emeralds and other precious and semi-precious gems have been found in over 45 different states in over 130 different counties in the U.S.? Many of these gems are worth hundreds and thousands of dollars per carat.

I wrote and sell an e-package, Find Diamonds Close to Your Home, that describes hundreds of specific locations where diamonds and precious gems have been found around North America. The same can be found almost everywhere throughout the world, especially in South America and Africa.

I discovered that in the Gran Savanna, most of the diamonds lie on a hard, clay, false bedrock. The trick is to find where small streams and rivers cut down to this clay layer. That is where the diamonds are. Then I simply used a Rotapan (as seen below) to wash the gold bearing gravels and recover the diamonds.

After I returned from the Gran Savanna with my pockets full of diamonds, I prepared and now sell an e-package with all of the exact locations of my discoveries.

Fossils:

19. Petrified Wood

I have been fascinated with petrified wood my whole life. It wasn't until I was about 30 years old that I realized that it has great monetary value to collectors. There are so many different shapes, sizes, colors and types of petrified wood. Collectors seem to love them all.

One day, while hiking through badlands in a remote part of Alberta, Canada, I came across a most amazing sight. There, among a pile of dinosaur bones, I discovered an entire petrified tree forest. There were petrified trees lying all over the place. They were nearly perfect, only broken in a few places. I was totally amazed. I ended up taking a broken chunk back home with me in my backpack.

Several weeks later I happened to be window-shopping in a downtown shopping center. I came across a store selling fossils, minerals and antiques. In the store I found several pieces of petrified wood for sale at sky-high prices. One piece, the size of my hand, was selling for $100.00! Then I spoke with the store manager to ask if he accepted items on consignment to sell. He responded very positively.

The next day, I took my 50-pound piece of petrified wood into the store. The manager almost flipped out as he saw the piece and said it was the largest piece he had personally ever seen. He put a $300 price on the piece and displayed it in a prominent location in the store. We made a 50 – 50 deal to split the selling price, if and when it sold ...(to learn more please order my system)

20. Dinosaur Bones

Over the years I have discovered unknown dinosaur beds and bones in Alberta, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Argentina, and in three different parts of Ecuador. Dinosaur bones are far more common than most people realize. They can be found in thousands of locations around the world. Have you ever researched the dinosaur bone market? Did you know that individual bones sell for $300 to $3,000? Just take a look at the e-Bay market for starters ...(to learn more please order my system)

21. Trilobites

Many years ago, I was a student of geology, traveling all over the state of Utah on field trips, visiting super interesting sites, learning details of millions of years of history. One of the sites we visited was

Antelope Springs, out in the boondocks east of Salt Lake City. After we arrived at the site, my professor gave us an orientation about the history, geology, etc. of the area. Then we began exploring the area, cracking open pieces of shale with our geology picks and finding trilobite fossils in nearly every piece that we opened. I was amazed at the abundance of fossils that we found... ..(to learn more, please order my system)

22. Ammonites

Years back, while living in Calgary, Alberta, I was introduced to a gentleman who had made an important discovery of ammonite fossils in the southern part of our province. I was told that this was important because these ammonite fossils had an amazing, unique color and had been officially declared a precious gemstone, sharing the light with emeralds, rubies and sapphires. Individual, polished ammonite stones were selling for $100 - $300! A single fossil of about 18 inches in diameter could produce dozens of these gemstones. This meant that each fossil could easily be sold for $1,500 - $3,000, depending on its quality!

Colorful Ammonite Shell

That really got my attention and I started doing my homework. And I started going out into remote areas, walking along the foot of shaley cliffs of what is called the Bearspaw Formation. This formation is the remnant of an ancient sea where these animals once lived. Within several days I began finding pieces of beautifully colored ammonite.

Soon after, I began finding whole fossils that were in the process of eroding out of the cliff sides. More than half of these fossils were considered to be of high quality and easily sold for $1,500 each. My customers especially loved the fossils with holes in them. The holes were caused by dinosaurs biting into the shells in ancient times -

27. Lake Beaches

As a teenager, I began hunting for lost goodies with my SCUBA gear at popular lake beaches in southeast Michigan. I never ceased to be amazed at the staggering quantities of valuables that people lost in these lakes. What's more is that this was before the days of underwater metal detectors. I found these valuables in the form of coins and jewelry simply lying on the surface of the sand in 3 to 15 feet of water. Almost every time I searched a new beach underwater, I found crumpled up paper money drifting along the bottom...(to learn more, please order my system)

29. Underwater and Sunken Treasure

Gold and silver worth about 17,500,000 pesos were shipped to Spain in an average year. Only small amounts were left in the colonies for local use. There is no way to determine the unregistered gold and silver mined during this period, but the amount is estimated at between one and two billion pesos. Some of this unregistered treasure was smuggled to Spain, but the majority was probably used to purchase contraband goods from other European nations, goods that came from the Continent aboard foreign ships.

In 1989 while sailing throughout the Florida Keys, I stopped for lunch one day just south of Vaca Key, near the city of Marathon. I was exactly 50 feet to the east of West Washerwoman Shoal Tower, a navigational tower a mile or two offshore. I threw my anchor over in about 8 feet of water. The anchor didn't seat properly so I donned my snorkeling gear and jumped overboard to manually seat it. Upon arriving at the bottom, in crystal clear water, I saw that my anchor was lying right next to an old cannon.

Unfortunately, I didn't have an underwater metal detector with me. After swimming around a bit and not finding any other artifacts, I returned to the boat for lunch and later sailed away scratching my head over the mystery.

Years later while doing more research on treasure wrecks in the keys, I came across some very interesting information. I discovered that a Portuguese galleon, Zirinha, loaded with $13 million in gold ingots from the mines of Brazil sank in 1588 in this approximate location. It had been trying to elude a pursuing vessel when it struck a reef. Records show that a few survivors were picked up by a Spanish galleon and then taken back to Lisbon. Records further indicate that no attempt at salvage was ever made. Further research revealed that old bottles, relics and coins are often found washed ashore at Vaca Key Bight. There is a very hot lead for you!...(to learn more, please order my system)

35. Training Courses

Perhaps you are an expert in some area with many years experience and can write a course about it to help other people. Quite a long time ago when I owned a private investigation agency in Alberta, Canada, I decided to do a test and see if there was a market for Private Investigation instruction. I typed up a 30-page outline to hand out as a notebook and then put a 3-line classified ad in the local newspaper.

Within three days I had sold out my 30-seat rented space at the local junior college at $300 each for a 4-day training course. I immediately set up a new course for the following month and sold that one out quickly as well. I then began putting on courses every month in both Calgary and Edmonton, hiring my very best graduates and expanding my agency. About a year later I had 15 full-time investigators and had grown to the largest P.I. agency in Western Canada. All along the way, there had been no competition whatsoever.

Then I got the idea to write a 500-page P.I. correspondence course and market it by mail order. I sold it in four modules for a total of $500. I bought classified ads in the major newspapers across Canada and used a free 1-800 phone number to take enrollments. I also became licensed as a Private Vocational School in Alberta, able to issue valid certificates of graduation ...(to learn more, please order my system) and was netting more than $10,000 per month! And he was taking off the summer months to go adventuring in the Peruvian Amazon jungle. That's when I really began to pay attention.

So I decided to give e-Bay a test and see if all the hype was true or not. I opened up an e-Bay store called Adventures Into the Unknown and began auctioning artisan goods from Ecuador. Within three months I became an e-Bay Power Seller, employed a full-time assistant and was earning an easy net monthly income of more than $4,000. We have discussed the possibility of creating a series of adventure documentary films made for network or cable TV. As a result of my conversations with these key people, I can say with 100% certainty that there is a major market demand for fresh, real-life, adventure material.

One of my friends, Mike Olafson of www.vintageadventure.com, is currently in the process of selling a series of adventure documentary productions to a major network. He was down here in Ecuador this last year shooting a variety of adventure projects with me. 45. Public Speaking and Seminars

During the many years that I have been involved in the public speaking and seminar business, I have seen some pretty great speakers not be able to make a living as full-time professionals.

Some of these people were very skilled speakers with interesting and valuable content, very well presented. On the other hand, I have seen some pretty mediocre speakers and presentations that packed the rooms. These people were literally making a fortune. How can this be?

The potential for success in this business as a public speaking explorer, is absolutely huge! And the demand for speeches, presentations and training is growing every year. I receive inquiries and invitations to give speeches and presentations all the time. Unfortunately, I am so busy in South America for the time being, it is impossible to take advantage of these opportunities.

I have spoken, however, over the years at various events and conventions. Some of my speeches were to treasure hunters and explorers groups. But my most lucrative presentations were given to groups of business people, where the theme of my message was inspirational, about setting goals and finding motivation to overcome obstacles. The metaphors for an explorer reaching a lost city or finding a lost treasure to the world of business are endless...(to learn more, please order my system)

46. Gem Stone Dealer:

I love gemstones! They are beautiful and valuable. My love affair with gems first began while living in the state of Minas Gerais in Brazil. This is the heartland of colored gemstones. Everywhere I went I saw gemstones of all shapes and colors. I even found a piece of smoky topaz (quartz) while walking through the countryside one day. I had this cut into two beautiful five-carat stones.

Various Colored Topaz Stones

Some years later, while working as a consultant to an Atlanta-based gold exploration company, I began buying colored stones in Rio de Janeiro and selling them in North America. I was primarily buying blue topaz, which was extremely inexpensive in Brazil at the time. I was always able to sell the stones for at least ten times what I had paid.

I have now spent many thousands of hours and tens of thousands of dollars purchasing software, books, courses and systems. In the last couple of years I have been able to develop proprietary technical indicators and a trading system that consistently wins. With this system I manage trading accounts for six different clients and average a trading account growth rate of about 25% per month...

What is even more exciting is that I have been studying ancient documents and occult knowledge that can be related to all free trading markets. I have discovered that there is a hidden, underlying structure to the markets. It is based on universal math and natural cycles in the universe. I know this sounds totally insane to most normal people....

To prove it to my friends and subscribers, I use an amazingly powerful software called [Wave59. When my friends and subscribers see this, and after they recover from amazement, they usually become believers.
